ABOUT FUTUREFY

The path from classroom to career is no longer certain, or linear. And the definition of success is changing too.

Tomorrow's jobs are being designed as we talk, and amongst today's leading organisations, purpose is more than a punchline. In an ever evolving workforce, it's a competitive advantage and vehicle for change.

In this New Work Order, young people will need more than good grades. They'll need the human capability skills that enable them to uncover and deliver their potential in a rapidly changing world. They'll need to futurefy both their skillsets and mindsets, and get ready to create impact.

YOUTH DRIVING IMPACT

'Being able to express your own ideas and build on others was really great. Having a new concept to learn about (each session) was incredibly useful in developing my understanding of what a purpose driven leader is and can be. It helped me define who I want to be.'

Nicola, Year 10

FUTUREFY

INSIDE OUR SCHOOL IMMERSIVES

"What do you want to do" is out. 'What do you stand for" is in.

Futurefy immersives give your students a taste of meaningful work that's here to stay, as they work collaboratively and creatively to apply their unique skills, strengths and potential to design a solution to a real world problem.

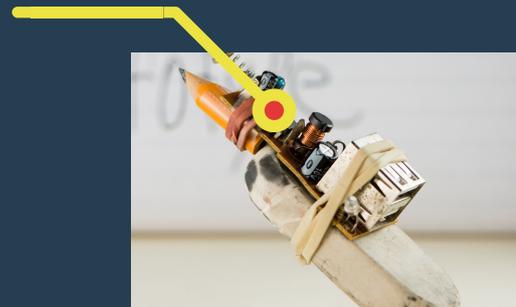

INSPIRE

Students explore real stories from real people creating impact, then meaningfully map their unique set of skills, strengths and values to uncover which Sustainable Development Goals they stand for

INNOVATE

Working collaboratively, students move through a creative brainstorming challenge, ahead of a design sprint that sees them create a prototype of a solution that seeks to positively contribute to the SDGs

IMPACT

With their solution prototype in hand, purpose and passion will be on display in real time, as students pitch their big idea for change, and commit to taking their next best step towards creating impact.
